PlanetPress is the bridge between your ERP system and your output processes. Outgoing document workflows can be automatically routed through different media, such as post, email and through a web portal. Time-consuming work, such as manually collating appendices, is automated with the aid of PlanetPress. This will result in cost and time savings.

In production environments PlanetPress can ease the post-production process. In this respect consider sorting to accommodate the affordable multiple postal delivery service to achieve savings on your postal expenses, and the addition of OMR marks for the packing line. Personal messages can be tailored to the recipient entirely in line with your house style. Using the print command, an electronic copy with the appropriate layout can be stored in your archiving system as part of the same process. The archive is fully searchable and documents are indexed to make them easy to find.
